DubMC.com, world music trade journal

The intent of this document is to try to take all the information floating out there about world music happenings in NYC during and around January 7-12 2010 and put it in one place. The target audience for this document is professionals in the performing and recording arts communities. Hopefully, this will be a useful guide to both those who want to further explore world music and those who are already indoctrinated; and will entice newcomers to attend. NOTE: This is not the official document of anyone or any organization. There are probably errors, and everything is subject to change. Use with caution. Apologies in advance. Please check artist or agent schedules for details of showcases. Some events are open to the public, but many require conference badges, paid tickets, and/or are invitation-only. Make sure to confirm times, research details, purchase tickets, and/or contact agents or managers far in advance of each show to ensure entry. Note the date in the footer of this document to ensure you have the latest version.
